

NEWS > DIARY

Wanted: a perfect Nigel Farage double

'Unusual look': Nigel Farage (Picture: Getty)

01 July 2014

The Londoner was at the George club in Mayfair last night and came across a strange menagerie. Simon Cowell rubbed shoulders with the Queen, we spotted David Beckham talking with Mick Jagger and joined Rihanna on the smoking terrace.

Unfortunately, we soon realised that the whole gang were mere lookalikes, invited by photographer Alison Jackson to help raise funds for the Spinal Injuries Association. Jackson didn't seem to need reinforcements but she's searching for a new face. "I'm always looking for good matches," she said, "but at the moment I'm desperate for a Nigel Farage lookalike. I don't know how I'm going to find him, it's going to be difficult because I think he has a very unusual look.

"I'm constantly going up to people and embarrassing myself. Sometimes people are flattered," she explained, "but would you be happy to hear that you look like Nigel Farage?"

Doppelgangers with unbruisable egos, apply within.